TV CURRENTS

NEW NETS REELING IN

The CW and MvNetworkTV, new television networks scheduled to begin broadcasting this fall, both gained more affiliates last week as they rush to expand across the country.

The CW, which will feature programming from UPN and The WB, cinched affiliate deals last week with 27 stations, including nine owned by Pappas Telecasting Companies. Those agreements will take The CW's signal to 66 percent of the country's TV homes.

MyNetworkTV, run by News Corp.'s Fox, signed 14 new affiliation agreements, including one with KRON-TV, Young Broadcasting's independent San Francisco station. MyTV now reaches 51 percent of the country.

MyTV, born of News Corp.'s need to provide programming to 10 Fox-owned UPN stations left in the cold by the formation of The CW, will program telenovelas two hours per night Monday through Friday after its Sept. 5 launch. Saturdays will feature a wrap-up. The CW, which will launch in September, will provide 20 hours of programming per week. Pappas is The CW's third-largest affiliate group, behind Tribune Broadcasting and CBS-owned stations. ■ continued from page 6 games and entertainment division, said he's confident his company can successfully program a historically difficult niche.

"GameSpot has been the authoritative voice of games and information for nearly a decade. Our users vote every day whether the content on the pages is what they want or not," Mr. Bencher said. "We know this demographic and have ideas we want to transfer to TV programming."

Other planned programs include coverage of competitions such as the Global Gaming League Tournament and the Blizzard Worldwide Invitational Tournament. Though previous televised efforts to portray multiplayer gaming have struggled to attract viewers, Gameplay is confident it will win fans

But industry insiders questioned whether the market is ready for a second gamer network, especially as part of the Voom suite.

"The idea of a channel about games, unless there's going to be lot of full-screen shots of the game itself ... and even if there is, I'm not sure there's enough value proposition there, said Todd Chanko, an analyst with JupiterResearch. ■
